Foundation or Chartered Management recognition built into every programme

As a specialist management and leadership training provider and strategic partner of the Chartered Management Institute (CMI), Fuel Learning is delighted to announce that all of our apprenticeship levy-funded management and leadership programmes now include CMI recognition at either Foundation Manager or Chartered Manager level.

This is a unique offer that sets our programmes apart.

Unlike traditional routes, learners do not need to complete separate CMI Awards, Certificates or Diplomas to gain this professional recognition. Through successful completion of our programmes, participants demonstrate the management and leadership competencies required by CMI, enabling them to achieve recognised professional status as part of their development journey.

For you as an employer, this means developing confident, capable managers and leaders while providing access to one of the most respected professional management recognitions in the UK, all through a fully levy-funded programme. Participants are developing the skills required to manage and lead successfully, along with a nationally recognised apprenticeship qualification and professional management and leadership recognition.

We would be delighted to discuss how these programmes can support your leadership and management development strategy and help build capability across your organisation.

Programmes included:

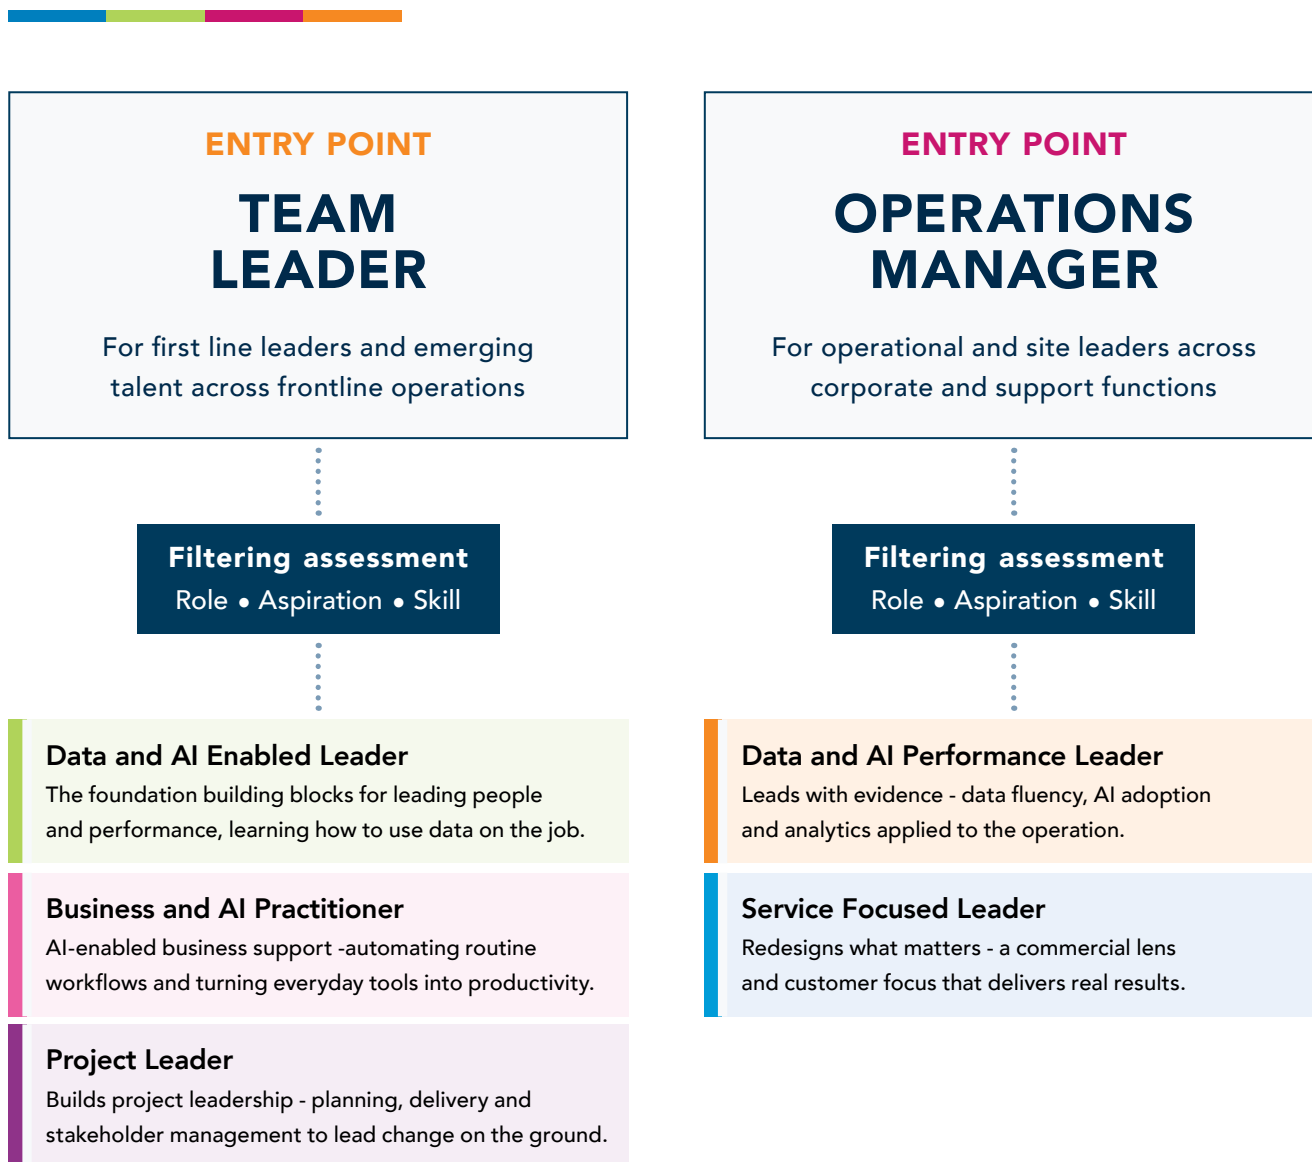

Apprenticeship qualification standard, plus CMI Foundation or Chartered professional recognition
